Subject: New version of Finan$eer coming

Hello,

You're receiving this email because you are identified as having access to Finan$eer, the web-based application that lets you view account information and transaction details for all accounts. Finan$eer belongs to the group of applications that are affected by the initiative to turn off systems that were replaced by ConnectCarolina and InfoPorte.

Note: Finan$eer only has information from before Oct.1, 2014 and will not be updated with new information.

Finan$eer will remain, but access will no longer be restricted by department. Due to concerns about keeping sensitive information secure, access will be limited to the group of people who currently have what is called "enhanced reporting access."

Note: This late-breaking change is different from what has been communicated up to now and is driven by UNC's responsibility to protect sensitive information.

For those of you who retain access, how Finan$eer works will change a little bit, since some of the technology that currently supports it is changing. For example, going forward, you will sign on with your Onyen rather than a RACF ID. We will be transitioning to the new version during the month of October and will send more details (including an updated user guide) as we have them.

Accessing historic information

Historic information is also available in the legacy data warehouses and other sources. We will be communicating details about the best ways to access historic information soon.

Questions or concerns?

For more information on what is happening to our legacy systems like FRS and the historic Payroll system, refer to http://ccinfo.unc.edu/legacy. If you have a question or concern about the legacy systems, send an email to connectcarolina@unc.edu, and we'll route your question to the person who can answer it.
